We have heard for some time that hanging was to be abolished at the naval academy. In fact, there is a tiresome ness about the reiteration.

With 225 acres of land, there ought to be plenty of breathing space and fresh air for the patients at the proposed Vermont sanatorium for consumptives.

Forty-one years ago yesterday Libby prison opened its doors to two thousand half-starved, emaciated persons who had won the Union blue in the great struggle. For them Washington's birthday has a special significance.

It is to be expected that some inmates of the state house of correction would charge their keepers with brutality. It is, too, not beyond the possibilities that these keepers were brutal.
The only solution is for the state investigating committee to go to the bottom and make their own conclusions.

A LATE RETRACTION.

There are five men who are willing to admit that they took a false position when they caused the charges of unprofessional conduct to be brought against Attorney General Charles C. Fitts of Brattleboro. They are M. L. Reed, J. C. Allen, E. H. Akeley, Charles Jackson and F. W. Stoddard of Vernon, Vermont. These men are doing the honorable thing in now seeking to make amends for their action, realizing undoubtedly that their hasty and ill-advised move placed the attorney general in a serious position. The popular condemnation of the bringers of the charges will therefore be somewhat mitigated in their cases. The retraction is as follows:

"We, the undersigned petitioners, in the case recently before the Supreme court against Attorney General C. C. Fitts, in view of the report made by the commission appointed to hear said case hereby desire to retract our belief in the charges of unprofessional conduct, as set forth in said petition, and we most sincerely congratulate Mr. Fitts upon his exoneration from said charges and his commendation by the court.
Since much comment has been made by the public press as to the reasons for signing said petition, we wish to say that we believed the defendant in the case of Bartlett vs. Pryce had been wrongly convicted in the final result of said case, and for which the counsel who managed the defense was largely responsible. This belief was formed from information received, and from an examination of the court records by some of us. That we were misled appears from the finding of the commission. We wish to emphatically deny any revengeful or malicious motive and to state that we believe Mr. Fitts to be an honorable and upright man."

Now let us hear from those Brattleboro gentlemen who signed the petition with the Vernon men.

Vermont's Attractions & Huntsman's Paradise.

Stowe, Feb. 23.—Edward Cave, editor of The Field and Stream, was the guest of H. G. Thomas, state fish and game commissioner, Wednesday and Thursday.

He came from New York to Bennington county where he remained two days, visiting game wardens.
Mr. Cave said these persons who declare "Vermont for Vermonters" to be their motto do not look beyond their nooses. The resources of the state agriculturally are not equal to those of the Middle West but a large revenue should be received from summer visitors and non-resident sportsmen. An immense revenue can be derived by the people of Vermont from those sources from well-to-do people in the large cities of the East. The natural resources of forests, game and fish should be conserved and Vermont may be placed in the front rank with the most famous summer places of America.

It must not be overlooked that it pays to advertise. Strangers with the money to spend will not find their way here uninvited. The railroads must not be expected to do all the advertising.
Those who expect to benefit by summer visitors must be willing to give up something in order to get the people here.
One of the first things to do is to support the fish and game commissioner in his good work. Mr. Cave thinks the open season for quail, grouse and woodcock is too long.

FIELD—DEBOER.

Brilliant Church Wedding at Montpelier Yesterday Afternoon.

Montpelier, Feb. 23.—Ethel Arend DeBoer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph A. DeBoer, and Edward Davenport Field were married at Christ church yesterday afternoon at four o'clock by the Rev.
A. N. Lewis. The church which was decorated with palms, ferns and azaleas, was crowded. Miss Laura Ruge, organist of the church, played the wedding marches.

The groom was attended by his brother, Frederick A. Field of Boston. Miss Minnie Arend DeBoer sister of the bride, acted as maid of honor, and the bridesmaids were Miss Josephine Butterfield of Norfolk, Neb.; Miss Edith Butterfield of Chicago; Miss Natalie Bennett of Amsterdam, N. Y.; and Miss Ada Davis of Pueblo, Col. Mr. Field had chosen for his ushers, Arthur G. Sprague of St. Johnsbury, Ray W. Huse, Frank L. Burbank and Frank K. Goss of Montpelier.

The bride was gown in white brocade satin, cut princess with short train, chiffon bodice with jacket of duchess point lace. She wore a full veil caught with orange blossoms, and carried a bridal bouquet of roses.

The maid of honor wore green soft shaded chiffon cloth with hat of green satin trimmed with lilacs, and carried a bouquet of maiden hair ferns and lilacs of the valley.

The bridesmaids wore light green chif-fon cloth, accented plaited with black picture hats, and carried bouquets of maiden hair ferns.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the DeBoer residence, on the corner of State street and Western avenue, the receiving party being Mr. and Mrs. DeBoer, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick A.
Field of Rutland, parents of the groom, and the bride and groom. Wilder's orchestra furnished music. There were very many beautiful and costly presents, among which was a large check from the bride's father, a mahogany chest of silver from the groom's family and a purse of gold from the groom's associates in the National Life Insurance company's office. Mr. Field's gift to his bride was a heart of pearls, and from the bride to the groom a brass desk set.
The bride gave her maid of honor a gold bracelet and her bridesmaids hand-carved gold bars. Plain gold cuff links were the gifts of the groom to his best man and the ushers.

On their return from a short wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Field will reside at 10 Richardson street. The bride is one of the leaders in the social life of Montpelier and is the daughter of the president of the National Life company, by which the groom has been employed during the past ten years.

MERROWS AGAIN PROMINENT.

Dr. J. W. Charges His Wife With Infidelity, Etc.

Burlington, Feb. 23.—Papers in a divorce petition were served yesterday on Mrs. J. W. Merrow in an action brought by Dr. Merrow. This is a cross suit, the petition brought by Mrs. Merrow having been served some weeks ago.
The petition brought by Dr. Merrow names Roy Hammond as co-respondent and alleges infidelity, intolerable severity, etc.

will probably be tried at the March term of county court and it is possible that the two cases may be tried jointly. The hearings on the question of alimony before Judge Powers developed some interesting points and when the case comes to trial sensational testimony is promised.

THE "GOOD OLD WAY"

The Bellows Falls Times makes the issue fairly between P. W. Clement and F. D. Proctor. It pins the matter down into a small area when it says:

"Should P. W. Clement and his supporters control the convention, a safe guess on the principal planks of his platform could be made even now.

"If Fletcher D. Proctor or any other man without a personal platform controls the convention, we shall not know much about the platform until the report of the committee is read.

"In other words Mr. Proctor, so far as we understand his position, stands for the good old way which has served the party so well in years gone by."

The "good old way" never gave Vermont one radical, important reform.

The "good old way" stood pat for prohibition 50 years, until the "New Vermont" idea forced local option on to our statutes.

The "good old way" permitted a gradual slack-ness in state affairs that is today wasting thousands of the taxpayers' money each year.

The "good old way" has steadily blocked progress, elevated weaklings and incompetents into power and kept the pick of Vermont intellectual manhood out of public life.

The advocates of the "good old way" have stood calmly by and seen a political machine take charge of Vermont's public business, until today a group of bosses and petty politicians have the effrontery to name our governors two, four and six years in advance.

Is the "good old way" pleasing and satisfactory to the voter who desires to think and act for himself?

Does the "good old way" promise reform in the way Vermont's affairs are managed?

Dare we trust the "good old way" to institute measures of reform and progress?

The "good old way" promises nothing, has performed nothing, is capable of nothing but the selfish advancement of certain selfish politicians.

Away with it! Let us have something new; a man with a platform; a platform that at least TRIES to help things; a campaign that produces ideas, born of fair and free discussion; ideas that will help; help that is free from the ring taint and freely offered by a strong man.

If we must have platforms, let us build them of sound, new timber, not the rotten deadwood of craft, silence and compromise.

Let us stand for something.

Let us compel our public men to do likewise.

Let us be done with machine politics and turn our eyes toward reform.

The Ant Eater.

The bird lime trap, by which small birds are caught, is an imitation of the tongue of the ant eater, which is covered with a sticky slime, by which ants and other small insects are captured.

Huge Turtle Shells.

The huge turtles that existed during the youth of the world appear to have inhabited the foothills of the Himalaya mountains. The shells and bones of these extinct creatures, which occasionally wash out of the ravines where they have been buried for ages, prove that they were more than twice as large as any specimen of the tortoise family which now exists.

Shingles.

A thousand shingles laid with four inches of exposure to the weather are said to cover 100 square feet of roof, and five pounds of shingle nails will be used in fastening them in position.

to do it, of course, but the principle is a good one and we stick to it. The Waists are of light and medium weight washable white goods, black and brown mohairs, dotted silk-finished materials, imitation Scotch flannels and vestings—all this season's styles—ranging in
